Resiliency Services

How to Bounce Back

From disease pandemics and terrorist attacks to computer viruses and natural disasters, an array of internal and external threats have the potential to disrupt your agency's mission-critical operations.

At KeyLogic, we understand that shutting down is not an option. Our experienced information security, emergency management, and business continuity professionals can help you design, implement and maintain the right plan to weather a crisis while enabling you to fully and efficiently comply with the Homeland Security Presidential Directive (HSPD), Federal Continuity Directive (FCD), Federal Information Security Management Act (FISMA), National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) and other guidelines and requirements.

When your mission depends on ensuring the safety of your staff and the availability of your data, facility, and technology assets, look to us for the insightful analysis, high-quality business processes, and leading-edge collaboration and communications tools you need to get the job done and continue serving your stakeholders at critical times.

With long-term experience helping the DoD, EPA, IRS, and U.S. Forest Service, address organizational resilience challenges, we stand ready to help you prepare, respond, recover, and mitigate with proven services in areas such as information assurance, emergency management, disaster recovery, and crisis management.

The far-reaching benefits of KeyLogic's Resiliency Services can help you to operate more effectively on the days when the unexpected occurs — and during ordinary times as well:

- Increased Mission Effectiveness. You build a more confident organization and strengthen your long-term leadership focus as you gain the ability to weather crises, even minor ones.

- Cost Control. You can free up financial resources by implementing innovative, low-cost practices such as replacing physical offices with secure virtual collaboration spaces.

- Improved Business Efficiency. The analysis that goes into your resiliency planning can help you evaluate performance levels across the enterprise, target defects, and implement process improvements.

To learn more about how KeyLogic's Resiliency Services can keep you going throughout some of your organizations most challenging times, please contact us today at 888.204.9649 or contact@keylogic.com.