Acquisition Management

Your On-Demand Source for Acquisitions Management Support

As mission requirements shift and budget and stakeholder demands intensify, few agencies have the opportunity to focus at length on planning and managing service or product acquisitions. Yet virtually any procurement effort could expose you to significant risks, from being forced to manage protracted award protests, to selecting vendors that fail to deliver, to incurring cost overruns that jeopardize other programs.

At KeyLogic, we designed our Acquisition and Strategy services to help you keep pace with the volume of acquisitions while taking risk and uncertainty out of every phase of this high-stakes process, from market research to RFP development, from merit review to vendor selection, and from post-award startup to contract execution.

With decades of experience in areas such as Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) compliance, KeyLogic's Certified Federal Contract Managers (CFCMs), attorneys, technical experts, and other specialists stand ready to help you staff and manage your next acquisition effort. Every day, we collaborate with Federal Government Program Managers, Contracting Officers, and COTRs on tough challenges related to acquisition planning and support, Clinger-Cohen Act compliance, and ongoing contract management.

Consider what KeyLogic's Acquisition and Strategy services can help you achieve:

- Sound, Objective Decisionmaking. You can be confident that KeyLogic and our staff members have no conflicts of interest that would preclude us from giving you objective, accurate, and balanced advice.
- Rapid Surge Support. If requirements change, you have the flexibility to raise or lower acquisition-staff levels while reserving the option to access additional skill sets you might need in the future.
- Lower Overall Risk. You decrease the likelihood that the award will be protested, and you increase the probability that the service partner you select will deliver the right solution on time and on budget.
